

Hi Everyone,

There are two parts to your summer assignment this year:

Part A: A large focus of our work in Statistics during first semester will involve collecting, representing, and analyzing data. As you enjoy your summer, try to take notice of any statistics or other data you might encounter in your day to day life. You might choose to jot down a little note to yourself about these different statistics you observe, but only if that seems interesting or otherwise enriching to you. You are under no obligation to do so, however, and no one will be collecting this work from you in the fall.

Part B: Your first priority this summer should be to relax and recharge and come back ready to do some awesome math work together in the fall. Please try not to let anything else get in the way of this priority.

Looking forward to seeing you all in September!
